4 DEPUTY CLERK: Calling MDL docket number M-10-2143,
5 In Re: Optical Disk Drive Products Antitrust Litigation.

6 Appearances, Counsel?

7 MR. MAJALYA: Good morning, your Honor. Sidney 8 Majalya for the United States.

9 THE COURT: Good morning.

10 MR. FRIEDMAN: Good morning. Jeff Friedman on behalf 11 of the indirect purchaser class.

12 THE COURT: Mr. Friedman, good morning.

13 MR. SAVERI: Good morning, your Honor. Guido Saveri 14 on behalf of the direct purchasers.

15 THE COURT: Mr. Saveri.

16 MR. WALL: Daniel Wall on behalf of Toshiba
17 Corporation and Toshiba Samsung Storage Technologies. I'll be 18 arguing for the defense.

19 THE COURT: Very well.

20 MR. ALIOTO: Joseph M. Alioto for the directs. Good 21 morning, your Honor.

22 THE COURT: Good morning. Any other appearances?

23 All right, let's lead off with the government. What 24 interference with the grand jury investigation is a little 25 discovery going to do?

1 MR. MAJALYA: Good morning, your Honor. The 2 government's position is that there are a number of ways in 3 which discovery in the civil case could interfere with the 4 grand jury. As you know, the government does have a grand jury
5 investigation proceeding in the ODD matter.

6 THE COURT: How long has that investigation been under 7 way?

8 MR. MAJALYA: I'm not sure I should say exactly how 9 long, your Honor, but it has been ongoing. Are you asking me 10 how long since we served -- there's a number of ways I can 11 answer that question.

12 Would you like to know how long in total the 13 government has been looking at this issue?

14 THE COURT: Not necessarily. But when did the grand 15 jury subpoenas issue?

16 MR. MAJALYA: Again, I am somewhat limited in what I 17 can say here because, as you also know, there is an ongoing 18 FOIA litigation in this matter.

19 THE COURT: Ongoing?

20 MR. MAJALYA: FOIA -- Freedom of Information Act -- 21 matter that has been brought by one of the plaintiffs, and 22 there are sensitive issues as to what has been acknowledged by 23 the government in terms of issuing subpoenas. But let me put 24 it to you this way, your Honor:

25 Several of the defendants acknowledge receiving grand

1 jury subpoenas in this matter in October of last year.

2 THE COURT: Okay.

3 MR. MAJALYA: And thereafter, plaintiffs began filing 4 lawsuits.

5 THE COURT: Okay. The reason I ask is, looking at 6 your proposed order -- I believe I have it here, yes -- what 7 you're asking for is a stay during the pendency of the grand 8 jury proceedings; and any resulting criminal trials. That 9 could be a long time.

10 MR. MAJALYA: Right, but that is for one limited area 11 of the stay, your Honor. We're asking for a stay on the 12 pendency -- for the pendency of the grand jury investigation
13 for communications relating to the grand jury. And so if you 14 look at -- it's Paragraph 3. And what we're requesting is -- 15 that particular portion is limited with respect to 16 communications with the United States or with the grand jury 17 investigating ODDs. We're not asking for a stay of -- for the 18 pendency of the grand jury investigation for document discovery 19 or depositions.

20 THE COURT: Well, no, I understand. Paragraph 4 has 21 some exceptions that you've outlined. But if I understand what 22 you're proposing, Paragraph 3 is the general limitation.

23 MR. MAJALYA: No, Paragraph 2 is the general
24 limitation, your Honor. And that's the 12-month period on that 25 particular portion.

1 THE COURT: Well, how do I interpret Paragraph 3?

2 "During the pendency of the grand jury proceedings and 3 any resulting criminal trials, no discovery shall be conducted 4 in this case that reflects, refers to or relates to grand jury
5 proceedings, including ODDs -- or concerning ODDs, including 6 any parties' or witnesses' communications with the United 7 States or with any grand jury investigating ODDs, including any 8 translations produced to the United States, except by order of 9 court on good cause shown and consistent with government law."

10 I've omitted the parenthetical phrases, but that's 11 pretty broad.

12 MR. MAJALYA: It is broad, your Honor. But it really 13 does -- that is designed to prevent witnesses from being asked, 14 directly, questions about what they told the grand jury and 15 what the grand jury asked them. Our request -- so in other 16 words, that part of the stay is not designed to prevent 17 plaintiffs from going forward with normal merits discovery. If 18 they have a witness, for example, who has been before the grand 19 jury, they're permitted to ask that person any range of 20 questions that are permissible under the civil rules of civil 21 procedure. They just may not ask that person specifically 22 about what they told the grand jury. They can ask him anything 23 about what he did, what his involvement was in any conspiracy.
24 They just cannot talk to him about what he told the grand jury.

25 THE COURT: Who is limited or restricted from stating

1 what occurs inside a grand jury room?

2 MR. MAJALYA: Well, we fully understand Rule 60, your 3 Honor.

4 THE COURT: But who are they?

5 MR. MAJALYA: I'm sorry?

6 THE COURT: Who?

7 MR. MAJALYA: The government is restricted from --

8 THE COURT: Yes. And who else?

9 The grand jurors.

10 MR. MAJALYA: Correct.

11 THE COURT: The court reporter.

12 MR. MAJALYA: Correct.

13 THE COURT: The attorneys.

14 MR. MAJALYA: Correct. Well, the attorneys for the 15 government.

17 MR. MAJALYA: No.

18 THE COURT: A witness can go outside the grand jury 19 room and say, I told the grand jury this, that and the other 20 thing. Can a witness not?

21 MR. MAJALYA: A witness can do that, your Honor, yes.
22 What we're attempting to do is prevent plaintiffs and defense 23 counsel from boring in on the particulars of the grand jury and 24 the direction that the grand jury is going. That is what we 25 are seeking to protect, and this order -- this particular

1 provision has been agreed to by the plaintiffs in multiple 2 cases and had been signed off on in several courts in this 3 district.

4 THE COURT: But what you're attempting to do, if I
5 understand Paragraph 3, is to put a limitation on a party or a 6 witness's communications with the grand jury. Isn't that what 7 you're trying to do in Paragraph 3?

8 MR. MAJALYA: We were attempting to prevent 9 plaintiffs' counsel and defense counsel from boring in on 10 questions that were asked of them in front of the grand jury.

11 THE COURT: You're attempting to prevent the 12 plaintiffs from inquiring what witnesses said to the grand 13 jury, as I understand Paragraph 3.

14 MR. MAJALYA: That is correct, your Honor. And to -- 15 and also to prevent them from disclosing communications that 16 witnesses have had with the United States as it relates to the 17 grand jury proceedings.

18 THE COURT: Okay. What harm does the government 19 suffer if the plaintiffs inquire of witnesses: What did you 20 tell the grand jury?

21 MR. MAJALYA: Again, your Honor --

22 THE COURT: How does that interfere with the 23 government's investigation?

24 MR. MAJALYA: Well, it interferes with the 25 government's investigation in that it allows counsel to look at

1 the direction the grand jury is going. It allows them to see 2 information on exactly what the grand jury is doing as opposed 3 to simply getting information about their case and the 4 substance of their case. And the grand jury is -- will be 5 going in a particular direction, it will ask certain questions, 6 it will have certain witnesses before it. And it -- the 7 government and its investigation will be harmed if defendants 8 are permitted to look behind the grand jury and see what it is 9 doing as opposed to simply getting discovery on the merits of 10 the case, which they're fully permitted to do.

11 THE COURT: Let me try again. How is the government 12 harmed if the plaintiffs discover or attempt to discover what 13 leads or avenues of inquiry the grand jury is pursuing?

14 MR. MAJALYA: Well, your Honor, it is not merely the 15 plaintiffs who would be discovering this investigation. This 16 information in civil discovery would be shared with all 17 parties, and there will be defendants who are the subject of 18 the grand jury investigation who will then know exactly what 19 the grand jury is doing, and that will give them a leg up on 20 preparing their defenses, on talking to witnesses, and we 21 believe the government is harmed if that happens.

22 THE COURT: Because...?

23 The government is harmed because?

24 MR. MAJALYA: The government is harmed because 25 defendants would then have basically preindictment discovery

1 that they are not entitled to.

2 THE COURT: Well, isn't the problem that you're 3 worried about is that this discovery would disclose cooperating 4 witnesses?

5 MR. MAJALYA: We are certainly worried about that,
6 your Honor.

7 THE COURT: Isn't that the point?

8 MR. MAJALYA: We are certainly worried about that,
9 absolutely.

10 THE COURT: Okay. Now, how long a period for the stay 11 of discovery is necessary in order for you to afford to 12 cooperating witnesses the protection that you think is 13 necessary so that you can get to the bottom of what you 14 consider to be necessary in order to make some prosecutorial 15 decisions?

16 MR. MAJALYA: Your Honor, that goes to the -- our 17 request for the one-year stay, the 12-month stay. We believe 18 that within that 12-month period, we will be in a position to 19 make certain prosecutorial decisions as to certain defendants 20 and individuals.

21 THE COURT: Paragraph 3 goes quite a bit beyond one 22 year, assuming, as in all likelihood, that the trials are not 23 completed within 12 months.

24 MR. MAJALYA: I agree that Paragraph 3 does go beyond 25 a year. But again, there are what we believe are broader

1 interests in terms of the integrity of the grand jury process
2 that we are attempting to protect under Paragraph 3.

3 THE COURT: And that integrity is, again, what?
4 Cooperating witnesses?

5 MR. MAJALYA: That the grand jury should be permitted 6 to do its work without interference and without having 7 plaintiffs and defense counsel looking behind what the grand 8 jury is doing.

9 THE COURT: You mean second guessing what the grand 10 jury is doing?

11 MR. MAJALYA: Well, no, not second guessing. But 12 being able to anticipate what the grand jury is doing by 13 looking at what questions and what direction it is heading in.

14 THE COURT: Well, what's wrong with that? Where's the 15 prejudice to the government?

16 MR. MAJALYA: Again, your Honor, it's -- it is -- 17 we're serving, you know, two purposes here. Obviously we 18 believe that there is some prejudice to the government. But 19 the grand jury is an entity that is separate from the 20 government. And we are responsible for protecting its 21 interests. And we believe the grand jury process is interfered 22 with if people are allowed to look behind the veil.

23 The grand jury process, as you know, is a very 24 secretive one, and I fully appreciate the Court's point that 25 witnesses are permitted to come out and tell the world what

1 they told the grand jury. But we strongly believe -- and 2 again, other courts -- this Court's not bound by the decision
3 of other courts, but other courts in this district have agreed 4 with us and have entered stays for the pendency of cases with 5 respect to grand jury communications.

6 THE COURT: Is there any question here about witness 7 intimidation?

8 MR. MAJALYA: Well, I mean, that is a concern that we 9 raised in our papers, that witness intimidation -- witnesses 10 could be intimidated. But we have no reason to believe that 11 that has happened in this case.

12 THE COURT: Okay. So that doesn't seem to be a 13 problem here. And the only problem, if I understand your 14 position, and I may not be fully appreciative of it, is that 15 the plaintiffs and/or the defendants are going to figure out 16 what avenues of inquiry the grand jury is following and 17 pursuing, and somehow or other make strategic decisions based 18 on that. I'm having a difficult time seeing what the harm is 19 to the government in carrying out its responsibilities.

20 MR. MAJALYA: Okay.

21 THE COURT: Or the interference that that creates for 22 the grand jury.

23 MR. MAJALYA: Well, I mean, we are concerned that if 24 defendants and plaintiffs are allowed to look behind what the 25 grand jury's doing, in preparing, for example, future witnesses

1 for the grand jury, those witnesses would have an exact idea as 2 to what was happening in the grand jury. And that is not 3 beneficial to the grand jury to get its work done, and we 4 believe that would be both interfering to the grand jury's work
5 and to the government's case.

6 And included in Paragraph 3, the government has sought 7 protection for translations that have been submitted or that 8 would be submitted by cooperating companies. We do believe if 9 translations are to be produced that have been produced by 10 cooperators, that that significantly harms those cooperators by 11 having to hand over those documents that but for their 12 cooperation they would not have to hand over. And that 13 prejudices the government in its enforcement actions in future 14 cases, because parties will be less willing to give the 15 government translations if they know that those translations 16 will simply be handed over during civil discovery.

17 THE COURT: All right. Anything further that you'd 18 like to add?

19 MR. MAJALYA: No, your Honor. I mean, we stand behind 20 our papers and the positions that we've taken in our opening 21 brief and in our reply.

22 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, sir.

23 Mr. Wall, do you want to weigh in in support of this 24 decision?

25 MR. WALL: Sure. Good morning, your Honor. Let me

1 just say that in listening to the dialogue, there's a couple of 2 elephants in the room here that just should be called out, 3 okay?

4 THE COURT: All right. Let's get those elephants out 5 in the open.

6 MR. WALL: One is is that much of the way that the 7 government prosecutes antitrust crime and other kinds of crime 8 is by the exploiting the prisoners element. They love it when 9 we don't know anything. And the rules are, for better or 10 worse, set up under the criminal system and the grand jury 11 system where it targets the subjects of an investigation. We 12 know very little, and don't know what's been told to the grand 13 jury, don't know how much the government has. The government 14 will naturally say they've got a ton, a lot. And what 15 Mr. Majalya is really saying is they don't want us to find out 16 how strong their case is. Now, whether that's something that 17 could count in this calculus or not is something that people 18 might debate, but it's the system that we have.

19 Second part about it is the other alternative is the 20 amnesty program. It's not just cooperating witnesses
21 generally. It's that virtually the entirety of the cartel 22 enforcement program that exists in the world today, not just in 23 the United States, but -- it's merely started in the United 24 States -- it's based upon inducing parties to come forward and 25 reveal cartel activity in exchange for amnesty, and then

1 cooperating with the government and providing information to 2 grand juries. And for the most part, that takes place in 3 secret. And in civil litigation, nobody can eventually prevent 4 the witnesses from having to testify about what cartel activity
5 there was. But it's rare, certainly unusual, if not 6 unprecedented, for them to actually say: Well, did you go into 7 the grand jury? When did you go in? Well, if you went in at a 8 certain date, oh, you were the amnesty applicant. Bingo, 9 gotcha. What did you say? What was your case? All that stuff 10 is what comes out.

11 Now, again, as somebody who spends 95 percent of my 12 life in the civil courts, I find the whole system on the 13 criminal side kind of strange in the way that information is so 14 tightly contained and compartmentalized, and that the targets 15 of the investigation get so little information. But it is the 16 system. And I think at bottom, what you see in the 17 government's favor -- and kind of the reason that we filed 18 papers -- is what they said is, We want a stay so that our 19 ability to play that game isn't prejudiced. Well, as 20 defendants, we have a different set of perspectives about that.

21 THE COURT: In a way, I wonder why you're here joining 22 the plaintiffs.

23 (General laughter)

24 THE COURT: Wouldn't it be very useful to prepare your 25 case, to advise your client, to know what the grand jury was 1 looking at?

2 MR. WALL: It's because of the other side of the coin.
3 And the other side of the coin is --

4 THE COURT: The other side of the coin.

5 MR. WALL: The other side of the coin is that in civil 6 litigation, civil plaintiffs have certain abilities and rights 7 and so forth than the government in a criminal case. They have 8 a different jurisdictional reach of what they can do. They 9 have a different ability to, of course, conduct depositions.
10 They can conduct depositions. The government can't conduct 11 depositions. They can issue interrogatories. They can ask 12 questions that the government could never ask.

13 But lo and behold, if they do it, those become 14 documents that the government can then subpoena. And this is 15 what's happening right now in the LCD case, where discovery is 16 taking place in the civil cases that the government could never 17 get in a million years in a criminal case. Absolutely no 18 chance of getting it.

19 THE COURT: What's the problem there?

20 MR. WALL: Well, the problem is that -- you know, I 21 didn't set up these rules, we didn't set up these rules, but 22 each game should be played according to its rules. And right 23 now, our view is is that those of us -- it's actually not 24 everybody who's been sued, by the way -- but those of us who 25 received a grand jury subpoena should be able to play the game,

1 that game, and defend themselves according to the rules of that 2 game without interference from the very different set of rules 3 that exist in the civil environment.

4 I want to go on though because I really think what's 5 maybe, you know, sort of more important here is that there
6 isn't any prejudice here. We're not talking -- nobody's 7 talking about having a complete shutdown of civil discovery 8 here. I appreciate your question about Paragraph 3 of the 9 government's order. I mean, I certainly did not read it as 10 broadly as your Honor did and wouldn't have thought that it 11 meant anything more than I could -- than as a defense 12 counsel -- and by the way, that one is all about the defense 13 counsel. It has nothing to do with the plaintiff's counsel.
14 It's about whether defense counsel can go in and ask people:
15 What did you say to the grand jury? And if it needs to be 16 changed to make that clear, we should change it. That's not a 17 big deal. It's a drafting assignment.

18 But the -- but what we're talking about now is if 19 there is a 12-month period of time when there isn't merits 20 discovery into the nature of the cartel, why is that going to 21 be beneficial? It's because something's going to happen in the 22 next 12 months. The implied, you know, promise here is that 23 within the next 12 months there's going to be an indictment, 24 there's going to be a plea agreement, there's going to be 25 something that an actually starts to reveal what it is that the 1 government thinks is going on here.

2 The other, you know, elephant in the room -- we're at 3 the zoo here, there's so many elephants here -- but the 4 elephant in the room is that, with all due respect to these 5 gentlemen, they couldn't answer five hard questions about what 6 this conspiracy is about (indicating plaintiffs' table). And 7 they can't. They couldn't possibly. Because no one knows what 8 it's about.

9 I can tell you, based upon the limited amount of 10 information that we have, that the complaint is grossly 11 overbroad; it has -- it names parties who are under 12 investigation; the scope of the conspiracy is all wrong, they 13 have all -- all sorts of errors to it. But that they don't 14 know about, because all they know is that somebody issued a 15 press release saying that there was a grand jury subpoena. And 16 in the course of the next year, that's going to change, in all 17 likelihood, because someone's going to plead or someone's going 18 to be indicted. And at that point, the Department of Justice 19 is going to either issue an indictment or an information or a 20 press release which is going to say: This is what we're 21 actually investigating. And at that point, we're going to see 22 what this case is really all about, if it's about anything.

23 Now, what can we do in the meantime? The fact is, we 24 can do a lot. There's a whole lot of work that can be done 25 without interfering with either the government's interests or

1 our interests of dealing with the grand jury investigation.

2 THE COURT: Why should anything be done?

3 MR. WALL: Why should anything be done?

4 THE COURT: During this interim period.

5 MR. WALL: Well, look, ask them (indicating 6 plaintiffs).

7 THE COURT: Why do you want anything done?

8 MR. WALL: I don't. But I'm accepting that -- to me, 9 honestly, I think the smartest thing to do would be to put the 10 whole thing on ice until the government acts. Then they can 11 amend their complaint to allege what's really going on, and 12 we'd pick it up from there.

13 But if that's not in the cards, I mean, right now, for 14 example, we don't even have -- first of all, we don't have any 15 operative complaints. But we don't have any coherent 16 definition of what the product is or what a direct or an 17 indirect purchaser is. There's massive inconsistency in 18 that -- in these placeholder complaints that were on file.
19 They could be taking discovery about the industry structure, 20 they could sort out who's a direct purchaser and who's an 21 indirect purchaser. You know, an optical disk drive is found 22 in an Aston Martin, right? So is Aston Martin a direct or an 23 indirect purchaser? And there's a suggestion in one of the 24 complaints, if you buy an Aston Martin, you were a direct 25 purchaser. They could be doing the basic rudimentary market

1 structure work that is a foundation for class certification.
2 There's a lot of things that they could be doing, and certainly 3 the least that they should be doing is get an operative
4 complaint on file.

5 The reality of it is is that a year is not a long time
6 in litigation. And, you know, maybe it should be. But in this 7 kind of litigation, it's not. And it's going to be far more 8 efficient to slow down a bit, and -- so the government can act
9 on this, and then let this litigation go forward. There's no 10 prejudice to anybody, statutes of limitation aren't running.
11 Everything will be fine. And the case can proceed there 12 without interfering with either the government's or our 13 interests.

14 THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Wall.

15 MR. COVE: Your Honor, John Cove for Sony.

16 THE COURT: Yes, sir.

17 MR. COVE: If I may have a moment, I think our 18 position differs slightly from what Mr. Wall's articulated.

19 THE COURT: Fine, before I turn to the plaintiffs.

20 MR. COVE: Sony Optiarc America received a grand jury 21 subpoena and issued a press release to notify its shareholders 22 that it had received that. This led to these complaints, which 23 are broad. They encompass every product, every Sony entity, 24 almost every -- ODDs are defined in some of the complaints as 25 every product that contains an ODD. Various Sony entities make

1 many, many, many thousands of different products that may 2 contain an ODD.

3 We don't think that any discovery is appropriate at 4 this point. The government has undertaken investigation. We 5 don't know what's going to come from that investigation. If 6 something comes of it that is specific, they will have a 7 guideline (indicating plaintiffs). If nothing comes of it, 8 plaintiffs will be able to file a complaint, if they have any 9 information that supports it.

10 Right now, they have a complaint, a date to file
11 amended complaint. We have a Rule 26 process set up.
12 Certainly we should engage in that Rule 26 process after we get 13 those amended complaints. But you know, from Sony's point of 14 view, we just don't think there's any reason to go forward 15 until at least the Rule 26 process -- see what the new 16 complaints say. If they say anything different, if they define 17 the products somehow or define the scope of the conspiracy in 18 some coherent way, maybe some discovery may be appropriate.
19 But I don't think that issue is quite ripe yet.

20 And from Sony's point of view, it disclosed that its 21 subsidiary had received a subpoena because it's wanting to make 22 sure its shareholders knew about that relevant information. To 23 embark on this humongous, burdensome discovery that can affect 24 every part of the whole company does not seem justified at this 25 point. I think we should wait, see the amended complaint, have

1 a Rule 26 conference, and go from there.

2 THE COURT: Let's see. If I understand the 3 schedule -- and by all means I'm sure someone will correct me 4 if I'm in error, and I hope that he or she does so -- the 5 direct purchaser plaintiffs are going to file their 6 consolidated amended complaint on or before August 5; a 7 Rule 26(f) conference will take place on or before August 19;
8 and initial disclosures, pursuant to Rule 26(a), will be made 9 on or before September 2.

10 Is that indeed the schedule?

11 MR. SAVERI: That's correct.

12 MR. ALIOTO: Yes, your Honor.

13 MR. FRIEDMAN: (Nods head)

14 THE COURT: When are the indirects going to file their 15 amended complaint?

16 MR. FRIEDMAN: Your Honor?

17 THE COURT: Mr. Friedman?

18 MR. FRIEDMAN: Your Honor, we would propose
19 August 26th. I can tell you the rationale behind it.

20 THE COURT: All right.

21 MR. FRIEDMAN: There was 29 days between the CMC 22 conference and the date on which you appointed lead counsel for 23 the indirects. We would simply ask actually for a lesser 24 period of time, obviously 21 days, in order to put our amended
25 complaint on file.

1 THE COURT: Okay. Well, let's see. August...

2 MR. FRIEDMAN: 26th, I believe, your Honor.

3 THE COURT: How would that fold into the schedule that 4 was set with the direct purchaser plaintiffs in mind?

5 MR. FRIEDMAN: Well, we certainly would engage in the 6 26(f) conference on the same date.

7 THE COURT: That would be August 19th.

8 MR. FRIEDMAN: Correct, your Honor.

9 THE COURT: That's before you file your amended 10 complaint.

11 MR. FRIEDMAN: Correct, your Honor. We don't believe 12 that there's going to be material reasons why the 26(f)
13 conference shouldn't go ahead on the same day.

14 THE COURT: All right. If you're agreeable to do 15 that.

16 MR. FRIEDMAN: We are.

17 THE COURT: How about the initial disclosures? That's 18 September 2nd.

19 MR. FRIEDMAN: We would probably move those initial 20 disclosures two weeks, your Honor.

21 THE COURT: To the 16th of September?

22 MR. FRIEDMAN: Yes, your Honor.

23 UNIDENTIFIED MAN: We have a status conference set for 24 that date your Honor, September 16th.

25 THE COURT: Okay. Well, if we did move the initial

1 disclosures to the 16th for the indirects, then we probably 2 should move that further case management conference. We can do 3 some scheduling in that regard.

4 MR. WALL: If I may, your Honor, I think from the 5 defense perspective we think it would be both proper and useful 6 to have a complaint before we have the 26(f) so we can have 7 that in relation to the complaint. And what it says -- and 8 it's -- we're talking a matter of a few days of, to rationalize
9 that. So we ought to just figure out a way to make that work.

10 THE COURT: Doesn't that make a good deal of sense,
11 Mr. Friedman?

12 MR. FRIEDMAN: It's fine, your Honor. I am -- I 13 always try to advocate for efficiency, and I thought not having 14 two separate conferences -- but we're not opposed to two 15 separate conferences, your Honor.

16 THE COURT: It's true we set a schedule with the 17 directs in mind. But it would be helpful I think to get both 18 the direct case and the indirect case moving along pretty much 19 on the same schedule.

20 MR. FRIEDMAN: That's what we're trying to do, with 21 the exception of the amended complaint.

22 MR. WALL: But we don't have a problem if he needs to 23 take it to the 26th. It just seems one schedule does make 24 sense, and moving things a week or two will get it done.

25 THE COURT: Okay. Let's come back to that. I would

1 like to get both the direct case and the indirect case on the 2 same schedule. And that may take some adjusting in our 3 presently existing schedule. We can certainly address that and 4 work that out as we go forward.

5 But with that in mind, that we're going to try to 6 bring these two cases on the same schedule, let's address the 7 motion to stay. And who wants to lead off. Mr. Saveri?
8 Mr. Friedman?

9 MR. SAVERI: Mr. Alioto's going to address the motion 10 to stay. After he finishes, I have a few comments with 11 reference to the comments made by my good friend, Mr. Wall.

12 THE COURT: Okay. I suppose you reserve the right to 13 comment on Mr. Alioto's presentation as well.

14 MR. ALIOTO: Everybody does that, your Honor.

15 MR. SAVERI: I think Mr. Alioto can take care of 16 himself, your Honor.

17 MR. FRIEDMAN: Your Honor, do you have a preference to 18 hear from directs first versus indirects?

19 THE COURT: It's up to you fellas. Whatever order you 20 wish to proceed in.

21 MR. FRIEDMAN: Thank you, your Honor.

22 We do agree with Mr. Wall on one thing that there are 23 several elephants in the room.

24 THE COURT: Well --

25 MR. FRIEDMAN: And we think the Court has honed in on

1 several of those with its questions. What -- the dynamic 2 obviously that is going on that Mr. Wall alludes to is the fact 3 that there are multiple -- there are competing interests, and 4 they're asymmetrical. The government, according to Mr. Wall --
5 and -- I think the government -- is trying to withhold 6 information to its advantage. Mr. Wall and the defendants in 7 turn, who are acting as rational actors in their self-interest, 8 are making a calculation as to what information is more 9 important for them: To receive or to give? And they've 10 calculated that it's more important for them, at least with 11 respect to this litigation and the rules of the game, is to 12 play the game, according to Mr. Wall, to withhold at least in 13 this process information from the plaintiffs.

14 The plaintiffs, speaking from our position, your 15 Honor, look at it as the following -- and it's a matter of 16 degree, and we're trying to look at this asymmetrical interest 17 and solve the problem, the problem being the 18 information-withholding game, and those that are trying to take 19 advantage of it.

20 Indirects -- and I believe that the government 21 unfortunately overstated the indirects' position -- after even 22 a conference with the government, the indirects don't believe, 23 as the government's motion and breadth of order has been 24 presented -- has met its burden. It's not our burden to come 25 back and then say, well, here's how we would craft the stay.

1 They fail to meet their burden, given what they've presented to 2 the Court, in our opinion.

3 But notwithstanding, instead of -- or in addition to 4 that issue being covered clearly by the directs, I think very 5 forcefully, we took the position of trying to look at the 6 merits and the harm and the showing of harm. First we look at 7 the government's position and the breadth it took. It submits 8 to the Court that in a decade, in the Northern District -- its 9 antitrust investigation, criminal investigations, four cases it
10 has come in and asked for a stay: D-RAM, S-RAM, LCD, CRT.

11 In two of those cases, D-RAM and S-RAM, the plaintiffs 12 were allowed to get -- at the very least, they were allowed to 13 get -- the documents, the preexisting documents that had been 14 collected, subpoenaed and provided to the grand jury. D-RAM 15 resulted in a, I believe, $860 million fine, approximately.
16 Criminal convictions. I think the government talked about how 17 successful, clearly, their prosecution was.

18 In S-RAM, there was not, I believe, charges brought.

19 In the other two cases, CRT and LCD, charges have been 20 brought.

21 So what we looked for, your Honor, is to try and 22 determine, in this historical lens, whether or not the 23 government presented evidence to the Court to say and answer
24 with specificity its argument as to: What's your harm?

25 So what we had expected if it existed was for the

1 government to come in and say, Well, in S-RAM, as opposed to 2 D-RAM, here's what happened: They were able to -- the 3 defendants were able to tailor their answers to construct a 4 defense in a way that prejudiced our ability to bring our case.

5 They don't say that. They don't say that in D-RAM 6 when they provided the documents to the plaintiff's counsel -- 7 just the documents, right now -- they don't say, It actually 8 resulted in us getting 860 million instead of 2.5 billion 9 because of the fact that they were able to invade the 10 centrality of our theory. They don't say any of that. They 11 make no showing.

12 And instead what they simply do is say, Well, there's 13 this hypothetical that's out there, that there could be a 14 construction of a defense with more information given.

15 Now, we then look at that and say, Okay, if that 16 interest -- as the Court I think wisely put to Mr. Wall -- if 17 that interest is a serious and real interest, sufficient to 18 stop the rules of the game from applying to some degree, then 19 Mr. Wall and his group would come in and say, Well, the 20 corporations, they want the information. They want to avoid 21 criminal liability. 860 million D-RAM. D-RAM didn't settle 22 for 860 million on the civil side. So they come and say, Wait 23 a second, our overriding interest is to line up with the 24 plaintiffs, as the Court says. Well, that's not what they're 25 saying.

1 So we look at it and say, Well, why not? Well, one,
2 on a macro level, clearly we can interpret their self-interest
3 as otherwise, if they're acting rationally -- which I'm not 4 questioning Mr. Wall's rationality yet.

5 And second would be the argument that they can get it 6 anyway. They don't have to use the civil discovery process to 7 have their witnesses, their employees, say, What questions were 8 asked of you? As the Court pointed out, there's no 9 prohibition. So they can gather the information, and they have 10 the documents. And so --

11 THE COURT: Well, they know the documents about the 12 witnesses they had access to, which had be their employees and 13 perhaps others. But they don't know what the other witnesses 14 or witnesses that were not under their control have presented 15 to the grand jury.

16 MR. FRIEDMAN: Agreed.

17 THE COURT: And what you're asking for at this 18 juncture is essentially all of that information, or at least 19 the documentary part of that information.

20 MR. FRIEDMAN: Well --

21 THE COURT: And that would put you on an unlevel 22 playing field.

23 MR. FRIEDMAN: Understood, your Honor. Let me first 24 say this: So again, operating with a rational actor, I 25 believe, they wouldn't come all in here together and take the

1 same position. If there was an information vacuum as to one
2 client, another client, another client, but not that client, 3 then they wouldn't all come in lockstep and say, we line up 4 with the government. That's my belief. So I think there's 5 something that can be said from that.

6 Now your second point: We -- and I started hopefully 7 my presentation with their -- we don't believe it's our 8 obligation to narrow the scope of an overly broad and unjust, 9 unsupported stay of argument. Directs therefore have taken a 10 very strong position and made that showing as to therefore why 11 discovery should go forward and the Court should, on an 12 issue-by-issue basis, surgically, make decisions, as I watched 13 this court do on some level in the Hepting matter.

14 The Court's ability to control is the answer. Not an 15 overbroad stay, throw the baby out with the bath water. And 16 the directs have made a strong showing on that.

17 We have said to the Court, as an attempt to try and 18 assist the Court in this process, to say, All right, we see the 19 asymmetrical game that's going on. We see it. We all see it.
20 So let's try and solve the problem at least on -- in one way.

21 And we looked at the documents that have been -- that 22 are sitting on hard drives right now that have been collected 23 and that need to be -- can be copied and handed over to us in 24 24 hours.

25 THE COURT: Well, what would you suggest the Court do,

1 in order to, to use Mr. Wall's phrase, play the game according 2 to the rules, Number 1; and Number 2; keep a level playing 3 field between the plaintiffs and the defendants? That is, not 4 to disadvantage one to any material degree, or advantage the 5 other to any material degree.

6 MR. FRIEDMAN: Understood, your Honor. And I think we 7 took an extremely, extremely conservative position on that, in 8 our suggestion, you know. Extremely conservative. And we said 9 the following, is that at a minimum, the production of the 10 documents turned over to the grand jury is not going to 11 disadvantage anyone at that table (indicating defendants); or 12 anyone at that table (indicating plaintiffs), and at a 13 minimum -- and that was done in D-RAM and S-RAM, and there's 14 been no showing that it actually disadvantaged anyone.

15 THE COURT: Well, would it put you at an advantage 16 over the defendants in that, or is the proposal that you are 17 making is that the production of those materials would be known 18 not only to all of the plaintiffs but to all of the other 19 defendants?

20 MR. FRIEDMAN: Absolutely, your Honor. So there's no 21 unequal playing field at all. At the point right now, our 22 operative -- all of the defendants know the documents -- to the 23 extent they turned them over, they all know their documents.
24 To the extent they have engaged in a joint defense agreement, 25 which is standard, and are sharing, there can be certain

1 inference from, all our history and experience in litigation -- 2 that may already have happened. I don't know. So I don't see 3 the argument as to the -- how that would in any way make the 4 playing field unlevel.

5 THE COURT: All right. Now, let me tell you what my 6 initial inclination was, and may still be. And that was to, to 7 use Mr. Wall's expression, follow the rules of the game. Set a 8 date for the filing of these amended consolidated complaints on 9 the direct side and the indirect side; go through the Rule 26
10 process; and keep in place a stay until that Rule 26 process 11 has been completed and/or the cases are issued.

12 Then open up discovery without limitation.

13 MR. FRIEDMAN: Well your Honor, we would ask to amend 14 that, the Court's thinking in one limited regard.

15 THE COURT: All right. In what regard?

16 MR. FRIEDMAN: And that limited regard, as we put in 17 our proposal and is authorized by the rules of the game, is 18 under 26(d)(1): The Court has the authority, separate from a 19 26(f) conference, has the authority to order discovery. We ask 20 that the court order, within 30 days of entry of a protective 21 order that we've been drafting or exchanging with defendants -- 22 that the Court order the production of the grand jury 23 documents; and then with respect to the rest of the Court's 24 ruling, I can't speak for the directs, but we would be 25 supportive of that.

1 THE COURT: Okay. Well, okay, (d) is simply the 2 timing, sequence of --

3 MR. FRIEDMAN: Correct, your Honor, absolutely. And 4 they've said no discovery can go forward until the 26(f) 5 conference. That's the rule of the game they're putting 6 forward. And I'm saying we understand and we fully intend to, 7 in the pursuit of the 26(f) conference -- which, according to 8 the rules of the game, I believe should have occurred on 9 April 15th, before the status conference. But setting that 10 aside, your Honor, of course, the fact is the rules of the game 11 provide for the Court, independent of the 26(f) conference, to 12 order production. And we ask for a narrow production. They've 13 had, as the subpoenaed -- the subpoenas were publicly 14 acknowledged in October of 2009, so in terms of fairness, with 15 respect to the documents and -- that I'm focusing on right now, 16 there's been an extremely long time to the extent for the 17 defendants to look at their documents in their case. And so we 18 think they would not be prejudiced in terms of the rules of the 19 game of to have to produce those very same documents within 30 20 days of the protective order.

21 THE COURT: Within 30 days of...?

22 MR. FRIEDMAN: Entry of a protective order.

23 THE COURT: And before or after the amended complaint?

24 MR. FRIEDMAN: Before.

25 THE COURT: Anything further?

1 MR. FRIEDMAN: Unless the Court has any questions, no,
2 your Honor.

3 THE COURT: Mr. Alioto?

4 MR. ALIOTO: Thank you, your Honor, and may it please 5 your Honor: The matter that is before the Court is the request 6 by the government to have a stay for one year. One of the 7 reasons is that the defendants would otherwise get an 8 advantage.

9 At the same time at that the government is asking for 10 this year's stay, the defendants are agreeing with them. And 11 so I don't think that there's any real basis for the stay. I 12 think also if the case were looked at as a regular case -- it 13 is a price-fixing case -- that probably within that year we 14 could get to trial, if things were properly focused, in my 15 opinion.

16 As was pointed out by your Honor, first of all, with 17 regard to the government -- let me just say one thing about the 18 government: The government has done, I think, in 19 San Francisco, the antitrust division here has been extremely 20 successful. They've done a great job, in my opinion, for the 21 country and for the law. They have sent people to jail who 22 violated our law. They have made them pay extraordinary fines.
23 I'm involved in the OCD case. They have fund of over a billion 24 dollars, and they've sent about 10 of these folks to jail, and 25 they have plea agreements from I think it's like eight, nine or

1 10. And so I have no -- or we have no intention whatsoever to 2 interfere with anything that the government is doing.

3 And I think that it wasn't correct for the government
4 to take the position that under federal rules, Criminal Rule 1 5 that we're now supposed -- that witnesses now can't speak about 6 what they talked about in the grand jury. I think the Court is 7 absolutely right about that. And the Court should never allow 8 that rule to be extended, unless the proper authorities extend 9 it. I don't think that that should be -- that rule should be 10 changed at all.

11 However, I don't think it matters here. We have no
12 intention of asking any of these witnesses -- I don't -- asking 13 them, What did you tell the grand jury? I don't care what he 14 told the grand jury. I want to know when, where, what, why and 15 how they met -- and we know that they did. And to be specific, 16 more specific, your Honor, the Court has the authority under 17 26(f) and (d), both of them, to allow discovery now.

18 We do have complaints on file. We're going to have a 19 consolidated complaint, okay, so it puts it all together.
20 Complaints are already on file. There's no mystery.

21 THE COURT: Let me ask this question: Let's assume 22 that I barred discovery, required the plaintiffs to file their 23 amended complaints, the defendants attacked those complaints on 24 Twombly, Iqbal grounds, whatever, and a motion to dismiss is 25 granted; goes up on appeal, is affirmed -- the motion to

1 dismiss with prejudice is granted, and that's affirmed. Then,
2 later, as a result of the grand jury investigation, some hard 3 evidence comes out of a conspiracy. Cannot civil plaintiffs, 4 whether represented by you or other counsel, come in and take 5 advantage of what the grand jury investigation and criminal 6 proceedings have turned up in pursuit of civil remedies on 7 behalf of injured parties?

8 MR. ALIOTO: If those cases -- I don't know, that's a 9 pretty good question. Because if the cases were in fact 10 dismissed with prejudice, and if that, in fact, dismissal was 11 affirmed, and if -- is the Court saying that the class action 12 has been ruled upon?

13 THE COURT: No.

14 MR. ALIOTO: So then, at least as to those particular 15 plaintiffs, those particular plaintiffs would be out. It would 16 be res judicata. They could not -- I mean, I don't think they 17 could come back at all.

18 THE COURT: Okay. And what would be wrong with that?

19 MR. ALIOTO: Plenty.

20 THE COURT: What would be wrong with that is that 21 those plaintiffs jumped the gun, they moved too quickly, and 22 they, by moving too quickly, filing too soon, paid the price.
23 That would be the problem, wouldn't it?

24 MR. ALIOTO: Your Honor --

25 THE COURT: And what's wrong with that? After all,

1 there has to be some consequence of moving a case along too
2 quickly, before the facts have developed.

3 MR. ALIOTO: The Court has raised the issue about 4 whether or not you know the facts and the extent to which the 5 facts are developed. The complaints we submit that are now on 6 file plainly, obviously, state a cause of action. I think that 7 any kind of Rule 12 motion would be in bad faith. I know it's 8 a knee-jerk reaction of defendants, but I think that the -- I 9 mean, the statements are very clear. These people got 10 together, they met often, they agreed on the prices and they 11 agreed -- and they in fact did what they agreed to do.

12 Also, I don't think that we should put a blind eye to 13 the people that are involved. With these people, the 14 government has them involved in numerous cases; so do civil 15 cases. Hitachi, Toshiba, Samsung, LG, Philips, these people 16 have been occupying the federal courts for the last six years.
17 They meet with each other more than they meet with their 18 families. We know who these people are, and we know how they 19 react, and it's very simple, I would say, too.

20 I think this also, as a practical matter, at least in 21 my experience with the LCD case, is that we can't forget this 22 one fact: These witnesses die, these witnesses resign and run
23 away, these people begin to forget. I mean, we run into a lot 24 of that now. We were stayed for quite awhile in the LCD case.

25 And we know the way they operate. We think -- I

1 believe -- if you want to get the documents from the grand 2 jury, first of all, they have already got them together. It's 3 not a big problem for them to give us what they've already got 4 together.

5 But I will say this also -- and this is my own view, 6 not necessarily the view of all of my comrades -- is that 7 those -- the documents in the grand jury are quite extensive.
8 And they attack, in my opinion, the pyramid at the bottom
9 instead of the top. It is very clear that when these people 10 meet, the documents that we would want are the documents that 11 show their communications with each other, the documents that 12 show their meetings, and the documents they took to the 13 meetings, which are called executive summaries but which 14 they've always done. And in those documents -- you don't have 15 to do this separately and you don't have to do it by invoice or 16 otherwise -- in those documents are their capacity, how much -- 17 how much can their plant handle, how much has it handled, how 18 much will it handle? And the need to stabilize the prices.
19 Because if they can't stabilize the prices, then they're in 20 trouble.

21 Also in those documents, not at the bottom of the 22 pyramid but at the top, in those documents are their 23 reflections of the demand, and they see it in terms of the 24 consumers, and they identify who they are. And each one of 25 these people, they have been doing it in every single case.

1 And in this case, it's obviously -- like we have even -- even 2 if you viewed this case as we did in our complaint from an 3 economic standpoint, you can see that it's phony, 4 notwithstanding the meetings and notwithstanding the agreements 5 that we assess.

6 So we would say that -- we would say this, your Honor:
7 That following the rules -- first of all, we don't think we 8 should be stayed in this case and any other cases, even if the 9 government weren't involved in it. Rule 1 is such a fabulous 10 rule because it seeks to get -- it seeks to turn away the 11 notion of justice delayed is justice denied. It's exactly the 12 opposite. It says just, speedy and inexpensive. Just, speedy 13 and inexpensive. Speedy and inexpensive. We could get these 14 folks right away, probably before December, if we got these 15 documents, and if we were allowed to take depositions. And I 16 really wouldn't care. We would say, Okay, we're not going to 17 ask them what they told the grand jury. Because frankly, I 18 don't care.

19 I think that the group that I am with, we have taken 20 many, many depositions, and we think that we would be a 21 complement to -- we think we would be a complement, your Honor, 22 to the Department. And I think that the procedure, in 23 following the rules -- well, what are the rules? The rules 24 are, as we put, the cases are clear there, your Honor, that 25 discovery isn't blocked because of an amendment to a complaint,

1 or a consolidated complaint. Or whatever. Why would we wait
2 for that? The defendants have been charged by us in at least 3 10 complaints. They know what we're saying. And the 4 consolidated complaint, what is that going to be? That's just 5 going to be a combination of all of them. Why should we wait 6 until then to get documents which they obviously already have 7 segregated, minimum? Why should we wait for that?

8 And if -- and if we have those documents, whether 9 you -- however they're described -- I mean, I think people 10 would like to describe them as the documents that the 11 defendants gave to the grand jury. Okay. That's very 12 specific. In a merger case, how would we ask for the 13 documents? We'd ask for the documents in terms of, Give us the 14 documents that you gave to the government under 15 Hart-Scott-Rodino. That's all we're asking for. You already 16 got them together. It's inexpensive. You got them in a drawer 17 someplace or a warehouse, wherever it is. There it is. If 18 they did this to the grand jury, have them give us those -- I 19 think there'd be too many because I would like to be --

20 THE COURT: Well, there is a difference, isn't there, 21 between a Hart-Scott-Rodino inquiry and a grand jury 22 investigation?

23 MR. ALIOTO: I don't think so, in this sense, your 24 Honor: That in the Hart-Scott-Rodino situation, they're 25 suppose to do hand over every document that has any relevance

1 to their claim or attempt to merge. Under a subpoena, they'd 2 better -- pardon me.

3 THE COURT: But that's a civil proceeding, by and 4 large. Very seldom does a criminal proceeding come out of a 5 merger.

6 MR. ALIOTO: Yeah, that's unfortunate. But I assume 7 that if somebody gets a subpoena -- I mean, they have to -- I
8 assume that they're going to obey it. And I assume also, and I
9 don't think irrationally, that what the government is inquiring
10 into, although they could probably -- I don't want to criticize 11 them on the breadth of their subpoenas -- but if they got to 12 the heart of the matter, they want to know when and where and 13 why and what and how the meetings took place, and the documents 14 that were there. They know what level it is. We know what 15 level it is. It's always -- like it's always in the 16 vice-president and president level. We know that the larger 17 advice, the chairman and the CEOs get it started, and we know 18 that the working group are the guys who put it into effect.

19 We now -- and we know that they got their so-called 20 executive summaries, which is all of this information given to 21 these people when they meet. We know how that -- we know what 22 they do when they meet, and how they exchange that information.
23 So...

24 THE COURT: All right.

25 MR. ALIOTO: Since that's so -- I'm saying this, the 1 defendants have represented that we ought to go by the rules.

2 We are going by the rules. And we are especially going by 3 Rule 1.

4 So there's no mystery here, and if the Court has the 5 power, which it does under 26 -- the Court knows what happens,
6 I think -- the Court knows what happens in a Rule 26
7 conference. I mean, it's not just, you know, we want these 8 documents. Okay. We're going to give them to you or we're 9 going to fight you, one way or the other. Of course they'll 10 fight you, one way or the other. But they have to have a plan.
11 We're talking three or four months just to get a plan together.
12 I'm sure there'll be a lot of objections. All these papers and 13 whatever.

14 We know where the core is. We know the people who did 15 it. And we can, if we want to, get right at it. And that is 16 within the rules, because that's what the rules allow.

17 THE COURT: Okay.

18 MR. ALIOTO: I'm afraid of one thing, your Honor, and 19 I've seen it, and -- first of all, I do not see in any way 20 whatsoever that we are hindering or hampering anything that the 21 government is doing. Indeed, we'd probably help them out, 22 which I wouldn't mind doing, of course, at all. I don't want 23 to hinder them or stop them from doing anything.

24 But the fact of the matter is: It's happened before, 25 it's going to happen again. When this stuff starts going on,

1 all of a sudden some of these folks resign. Next thing you
2 know they're in the backwaters of Bangkok or something, you
3 can't find them. Some of them die. Some of them are fired.
4 They leave. And then, of course, the big one is, Oh, well, 5 I've forgotten. And so the idea of any stay, your Honor, from 6 just the regular rules, following the regular rules, I think 7 would be very devastating -- well, devastating to the 8 plaintiffs. I think under the Molinari case, there's no
9 question that in each one of those criteria, your Honor --

10 THE COURT: Molinari? Molinaro?

11 MR. ALIOTO: Yes, your Honor. I originally said
12 Molinari, too, like a salami. But it's Molinaro. Give the guy 13 a break (general laughter).

14 But under that case, each of those entrants are served
15 by -- what is in front of the Court? The only thing in front 16 of the Court at the moment is a motion to stay.

17 THE COURT: Right. All right.

18 MR. ALIOTO: We say that the Court should deny that.

19 THE COURT: Thank you.

20 MR. ALIOTO: Thank you, your Honor.

21 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Saveri, your comment on --

22 MR. SAVERI: I don't want to repeat what Mr. Alioto 23 said because he's quite capable of doing what he wants. But 24 certain references are made to other cases that I've 25 participated in, and am participating now in, namely the D-RAM

1 case and the S-RAM case, and also the LCD case.

2 THE COURT: Mr. Alioto did say something that was 3 quite interesting, and that was that when we get to the Rule 26 4 conference, we're going to be sitting down -- you fellows are 5 going to be sitting down and you're going to be thrashing out a 6 discovery plan. And that's going to take some time.

7 MR. SAVERI: Right.

8 THE COURT: Why shouldn't we do that before we have 9 any actual discovery?

10 MR. SAVERI: Well, we could do it at that conference, 11 but there's nothing to prevent the defendant from turning over 12 these grand jury documents which they have in their office
13 right now, as Mr. Alioto said. That has occurred in the D-RAM 14 case; it has occurred in the S-RAM case; it has occurred in the 15 LCD case. They turned these documents over.

16 You know, this is very interesting what has developed
17 in these cases. This is what happened in D-RAM. Now, Mr. Wall 18 talks about the level playing field. Well, the level playing 19 field -- why don't we just abide by the regular rules of civil 20 procedure and forget the grand jury documents and forget the 21 DOJ? We have filed a complaint. That's on file s. We're 22 going to file a consolidated complaint. The consolidated 23 complaint will pass muster, and any Twombly motion or anything 24 like that. And the law's pretty clear, as we indicated in our 25 motion, that there is no stay of discovery because of a Twombly

1 motion or any kind of a motion. The cases are legion on that.
2 That doesn't stay discovery. And that's how we want to 3 proceed.

4 Now, if we want to proceed on a level playing field,
5 let's forget the grand jury documents. Let's forget the DOJ
6 documents, as Mr. Alioto said. So we will file, tomorrow, a 7 motion -- we will file, tomorrow, a set of interrogatories, the 8 typical set of interrogatories that we file in an antitrust 9 case; and we will file a document request, the typical document
10 request that is filed in an antitrust case. And we will ask 11 the typical things that we ask. And the main things that we 12 ask are for communications between the defendants and also any 13 documents that they have that refer to communications before 14 the defendants. Now, if that is the level playing field, why 15 can't we do that within a week and they can respond in 30 days?
16 And forget about all the stays and everything else. That is 17 the level playing field.

18 But they don't want to play like that, because they're 19 going to come in with motions to stay, grand jury things, grand 20 jury investigations. So that would be the normal thing to do, 21 but we can't do it now because the government then comes in and 22 says, I want a stay.

23 Now, with reference to the government, putting 24 everything off until the government is completed, that can be, 25 as somebody says, the Twelfth of Never. The government has

1 had, I know they had a D-RAM investigation going on for years.
2 And they've had the LCD investigation going on for years. And 3 if we have to wait until that is over before we move, we will 4 be very, very severely prejudiced. We may well run into 5 statute of limitations problems and things like that.

6 And so what I'm trying to say is there should be some 7 discovery that should be permitted right now. And the easiest 8 thing for them is to turn over these documents. And let's not 9 kid anybody: They know exactly what is in those documents.
10 Every defendant knows exactly what's in those documents, 11 because the subpoena has called for the same documents from 12 everybody. And I'm not -- I won't be a bit surprised if they 13 have a sharing agreement. In fact, there's a great article I 14 think we cited in our brief by a Mr. Bock from Howrey Simon who 15 says the best way to defend these cases when you're sued is get 16 together with an agreement where we share all the information.
17 They know exactly what's going on. And this stuff about 18 they're not knowing and tipping people off is a bunch of 19 baloney. That is what happens in a practical world.

20 Now, by producing the documents in the D-RAM case 21 where they turned over the grand jury documents within four or 22 five months, I believe it was, and the same thing that Judge 23 Wilken ordered -- ordered the defendants to give us the 24 documents that were turned over to the grand jury, that didn't 25 prejudice anybody. And we can move on ahead and have a 26(f)

1 conference, but we also would be a step ahead by having these 2 documents. And that's all we're asking for.

3 And as far as the -- and I want to talk a little about 4 the proposed order with the government. You've asked some very 5 interesting questions about communications with the grand jury.
6 We -- as Mr. Alioto said, we don't want to know what anybody 7 told the grand jury. We will abide by the criminal rules. We 8 never intended to do that. But there are a lot of 9 communications that might have taken place in the grand jury
10 that we're entitled to. And in talking to Mr. Majalya 11 yesterday, I said, What about some guy that goes to the grand 12 jury and spills his guts and he comes out and comes to my 13 office and tells me what went on? Now, aren't I entitled to 14 that? And he agreed that I am. So when you look at that 15 proposal, it's fraught with problems. The grand jury stuff and 16 the proposals they have is fraught with problems.

17 And in the LCD case, that provision that they have 18 inserted in the order has created a lot of problems, with 19 translations, with communications with the government. The 20 same problems arose in S-RAM. The proposal that the -- the 21 order that they made is just too broad and doesn't work.

22 So all I'm trying to say is: We're not going to step 23 on the shoes of the Department of Justice with reference to 24 anything that happened before the grand jury. And we certainly 25 should be entitled to get the DOJ -- the documents that were

1 turned over to the grand jury. That would take a minute, and 2 then we can have a 26 conference. And I think it would be very 3 prejudicial to us if we put this case off and put it on ice.

4 THE COURT: Okay.

5 MR. SAVERI: Thank you.

6 THE COURT: Very well. Matter submitted, Counsel?
7 Anything further?

8 MR. MAJALYA: Just a couple of points, your Honor.
9 Mr. Friedman in his presentation indicated a couple of things 10 that I believe shows a level of ignorance on the part of the 11 plaintiffs on multiple levels. But on the level that we are 12 interested in, the government did submit an under-seal
13 declaration to the Court about certain facts that I am not 14 permitted to talk about in open court. And so there's a reason 15 that they are ignorant to those facts.

16 The Court may not have been convinced by what we said 17 in our papers, but there are facts that are specific to this 18 case that we did present in trying to meet our burden in order 19 to get an order for a stay.

20 In addition, and I have to again speak more broadly 21 here because I cannot speak about this case in particular, but 22 in many of the government's cases pursued by the antitrust 23 division, there are leniency applicants and there are 24 cooperators. And cooperators and leniency applicants are not 25 in the business of sharing their documents with other

1 defendants. So the speculation that plaintiffs are engaged in 2 with respect to -- that defendants are spreading these 3 documents around and they all know what each other has, I think 4 is inappropriate and not correct. And so I don't think it's 5 the case that all the defendants know what everybody has and 6 only the plaintiffs are getting left out.

7 The final point is -- I want to make is with respect 8 to the question relating to grand jury witnesses and the fact
9 that Mr. Saveri said that I agreed that a grand jury witness 10 can come out of the grand jury and go to his office and say 11 whatever he wants. That is absolutely true. And we are not 12 attempting to prevent a witness from voluntarily going to 13 Mr. Saveri's office and telling them everything that they told 14 the grand jury in terms of the actual facts as to what that 15 person did, and what they know.

16 But -- witnesses in the grand jury are again permitted 17 to disclose whatever they have told the grand jury, but the 18 difference here is that the plaintiffs would be seeking to 19 compel them to tell them what they said in the grand jury. And 20 so that is not a situation where the witness is voluntarily 21 saying what happened in the grand jury, they're being compelled 22 to tell what happened in the grand jury. And that is what 23 we're attempting to prevent. We're attempting to prevent 24 counsel from again boring in on the direction of the grand 25 jury.

1 So I think that is all the government has.

2 THE COURT: Very well. Thank you, sir.

3 MR. WALL: Your Honor, I know you want to go. Just 4 one minute total. I just want to make two points. First of 5 all --

6 THE COURT: Two points in one minute. All right.

7 MR. WALL: Okay. Just very quick. You know, the -- a 8 lot of rhetoric about how we're playing some information game
9 or whatever. This issue of parallel civil/criminal proceedings 10 is a very serious issue. I would just note for your Honor the 11 Harvard Law Review note that we cited does a very deep 12 treatment of this. I think it shows that there are serious 13 interests here, and I would just commend it to you. It's not 14 just some sort of gamesmanship.

15 The other point that I want to make is: We have all 16 these references to the other cases in the district. In the 17 LCD case, the D-RAM case, the Flash case and the GPU case, the 18 plaintiffs got the documents only after there was a 19 consolidated amendment on file and a Rule 26(f) conference.
20 The only case to the contrary is the decision by Judge Wilken
21 in the S-RAM case. I was in that case. I can just tell you, 22 without going too far, we didn't get to have a conversation
23 like this. You've taken a lot of time with us. We appreciate 24 it very much, your Honor.

25 THE COURT: Very well. The matter will be submitted.

1 And the Court looks, in deciding this case, to the fairly 2 limited guidance that the Ninth Circuit has given us. It seems 3 to be most articulated -- well articulated in Federal Savings
4 and Loan Insurance Corporation vs. Molinaro, 889 F.2d, 899.
5 889 F.2d, 899. And the factors that the Ninth Circuit has 6 counseled the Court to use in exercising its discretion with 7 respect to permitting or sequencing or timing discover where 8 there are parallel criminal and civil proceedings are 9 essentially as follows:

10 "A court must decide whether to stay civil proceedings 11 in the face of those parallel criminal proceedings in light of 12 the particular circumstances and competing interests involved 13 in the case. Obviously a court should consider the extent to 14 which the defendant's Fifth Amendment rights are implicated.
15 Other factors a court should consider will vary according to 16 the case itself, but will generally include:

17 "The interest of the plaintiffs in proceeding 18 expeditiously with this litigation or any particular aspect of 19 it, and the potential prejudice to the plaintiffs of a delay."

20 The court should also consider:

21 "The burden which any particular aspect of the 22 proceedings may impose on defendants; the convenience of the 23 court in the management of its cases, and the efficient use of 24 judicial resources; the interests of persons not parties to the 25 litigation; and the interest of the public in the pending

1 civilian criminal litigation."

2 And I agree with Mr. Wall's comment, that in a 3 situation such as this, there are serious issues which 4 transcend the particular interests of the parties to the 5 litigation, and to the civil proceedings. A decision about the 6 timing and the sequencing of this discovery is not a decision 7 that should be made lightly.

8 But I also agree with the tenor and tone and substance
9 I think of the comments made by Mr. Saveri, that in the absence 10 of particular concerns, I think we should proceed with the 11 civil litigation pretty much in the same manner and in the same 12 order that we would proceed with the civil litigation in the 13 absence of a pending grand jury proceeding. To be sure, that 14 grand jury proceeding may affect some particular aspects of the 15 discovery, may affect the timing of it in various ways, but we 16 have civil cases before us and it's appropriate to proceed with 17 those as expeditiously and in as orderly a fashion as we can.

18 So I am disinclined to grant the blanket kind of stay 19 on discovery that the government seeks here. What I would 20 attempt to do, what I am attempting to do, is to create as much 21 as possible a level playing field between the plaintiffs and 22 the defendants in the civil litigation as we go forward, 23 without unduly jeopardizing the quite legitimate interests of 24 the government in protecting its case, its confidential
25 informants, and protecting the integrity of the leniency

1 program which it has in place.

2 Here's what I think we should do: We should have the 3 plaintiffs submit their consolidated amended complaints, both 4 the indirect and direct plaintiffs. That we should allow the 5 plaintiffs to propound whatever discovery that they believe is 6 appropriate to propound, and then sit down first after the 7 26(f) conference, among the parties, and the initial 8 disclosures, at a further case management conference, at which 9 we will take up the particulars of the discovery that the 10 plaintiffs want to pursue.

11 I am impressed with the government's point, which I 12 think was a good point that it made in support of its position, 13 that while the defendants know what documents they turned over 14 to the grand jury, not all of the defendants are aware of the 15 whole universe of documents that may be before the grand jury.
16 And there are legitimate government interests with respect to 17 the confidentiality of some of those submissions.

18 But I think we can discuss the particulars of what is 19 necessary to protect the government's legitimate interests in 20 conducting its investigation and protecting its confidential 21 witnesses, informants and protecting its leniency program, in 22 the context of specific discovery requests, rather than 23 imposing a blanket stay of all discovery. So here's what I 24 propose:

25 A slight modification of the schedule that we

1 previously put in place, in order for the indirect plaintiffs 2 to get essentially on the same schedule as the direct 3 plaintiffs. That both the direct and the indirect purchaser 4 plaintiffs will file their consolidated complaints on or before 5 August 19. That's the two-week extension, Mr. Friedman, that 6 you were seeking.

7 MR. FRIEDMAN: I believe I asked for August 26th, your 8 Honor.

9 THE COURT: Did you ask for August 26th?

10 MR. FRIEDMAN: I did.

11 THE COURT: Well, your wish is -- I won't say my 12 command, but --

13 MR. FRIEDMAN: Thank you, your Honor.

14 (General laughter)

15 THE COURT: Well, that makes a slight change, but 16 maybe not one that will materially affect matters. And if this 17 schedule poses a particular problem for any party, by all 18 means, speak up, as Mr. Friedman did.

19 What I would propose then is that the consolidated 20 complaints be submitted on or before August 26. That the 21 parties conduct their Rule 26(f) conference on or before 22 September 9. That initial disclosures be made on or before 23 September 23. And that we schedule a further case management 24 conference on September 30.

25 And I'll ask the Clerk to suggest a time for that

1 conference. That is a Thursday.

2 DEPUTY CLERK: That is a Thursday, your Honor. Do you
3 want to do it on a Wednesday?

4 THE COURT: What does Wednesday or Friday look like?
5 How about the 29th of September? Is that too soon
6 after the initial disclosures? We can do it on the 29th, can't 7 we?

8 DEPUTY CLERK: If we're not in trial, we can do it.
9 At 11:00 o'clock or 10:00 o'clock.

10 THE COURT: 10:00 o'clock. 10:00 o'clock on the 29th
11 of September? How's that?

12 MR. FRIEDMAN: Good, your Honor.

13 MR. WALL: That's fine, your Honor.

14 THE COURT: All right. Is the ruling complete and 15 understood?

16 MR. WALL: Yes, your Honor.

17 MR. FRIEDMAN: Yes, your Honor.

18 MR. SAVERI: I'd like to make an announcement that you 19 asked us to make in connection with discovery coordinators.
20 You asked the directs to select a person, the indirects to 21 select a person, and the defendants. The directs have selected
22 Mr. Bruce Simon as our discovery coordinator. The indirects 23 have selected Mr. Friedman as the discovery coordinator. We've 24 asked Mr. Cove sometime ago to select one. He hasn't selected 25 one yet, but he indicated to me -- unless he knows today who

1 your person is going to be -- who the name of the person is.

2 So those would be the people who would be contacting 3 you on discovery problems.

4 THE COURT: That's fine.

5 MR. SAVERI: Do you have a name yet?

6 MR. COVE: It's not for me to select. I think we have 7 to agree.

8 MR. SAVERI: Okay.

9 THE COURT: All right. I'll look forward to whatever 10 it is.

11 MR. WALL: Thank you, your Honor.

12 MR. SAVERI: Thank you, your Honor.

13 MR. ALIOTO: Thank you, your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Thank you very much, Counsel.

15 DEPUTY CLERK: This court's in recess, and we'll 16 resume at 2:00 this afternoon.

17 (Adjourned)
